SECTION I. THE PRACTICUM SEARCH

1. Overview

The practicum allows students to examine a significant problem or issue within the broader field of sustainable development through experiential learning. Students who complete a practicum will develop a range of skills and varying levels of content knowledge and expertise, and they will have different overall experiences based on where their organization is located and the type of organization for whom they work. However, the value of the experiential learning and training opportunity extends to all students and includes the learning objectives listed below.

By the end of their practicums, students will have:

- Translated into practice the concepts and principles learned in the classroom
- Developed skill competencies
- Acquired deeper understanding of the development problem and the context in which it is situated
- Reflected on the content and process of the learning experience
- Demonstrated professional and personal development through relationship building and applied knowledge, skills, and experience in the work place
- Demonstrated awareness of organizational culture and/or community concerns

Anticipated outcomes of the practicum include the following practical skills:

- Inquiry and analysis
- Critical and creative thinking
- Information literacy
- Teamwork and problem solving
- Professional goals and networks
- Personal growth through greater self-awareness and confidence

The practicum should allow students to maximize learning, hone practitioner skills, increase responsibility, and expand their professional networks.

The practicum experience is meant to inform the student’s master’s paper and to align closely with the SID curriculum frameworks. Students are required to write either a consultant’s report or research paper based on their work with the practicum organization.

2. Practicum Requirements

Requirements for the MA/SID—Practicum Track

- Students must secure a practicum in a development organization (intergovernmental organization, nonprofit or non-governmental organization, government agency, or for-profit with a social mission)
- The practicum must be full-time (35-40 hours per week) for six consecutive months (September 2018-March 2019). (For international students undertaking an international practicum, one month can be off-site from the practicum organization.)
- Students must enroll as a full-time student in the practicum course HS230a for fall and spring semesters (24 credits). The course is graded as credit (CR) or no credit (NC).

Requirements for the MASID/MSGHPM

- Students must secure a practicum in an organization (intergovernmental organization, nonprofit or non-governmental organization, government agency, or for-profit with a social mission) that focuses on some aspect of development and health.
- The practicum must be full-time (35-40 hours per week) for 10-12 weeks (May-August 2018).
• Students must enroll as a full-time student in the practicum course HS230a for the summer (12 credits). The course is graded as credit (CR) or no credit (NC).

Requirements for MA/SID students with a concentration (environment, management, gender, or coexistence)

• Students must secure a practicum in a development organization that focuses on the topic of the student’s concentration (intergovernmental organization, nonprofit or non-governmental organization, government agency, or for-profit with a social mission)
• The practicum must be full-time (35-40 hours per week) and be completed in the fall term (environment, management, or gender) or spring term (coexistence) of the student’s second-year.
• Students must enroll as a full-time student in the practicum course HS230a for the term in which they are completing their practicum (12 credits). The course is graded as credit (CR) or no credit (NC).

Requirements for all tracks: MA/SID Practicum, MASID/MSGHPM, and Concentrations

• Students should secure only one practicum to fulfill the requirements of their program (i.e., multiple practicums cannot be pieced together to meet the criteria of full-time and/or three- or six-months [depending on program])
• The practicum should be based at the practicum organization (i.e., not remote). (For international students undertaking an international practicum, one month can be off-site/remote from the practicum organization. This is for visa purposes.)
• Students must submit a terms of reference (TOR) for SID program review (please note that the practicum is not approved until the program has received the TOR and signs off on it). Typically, after the student and their supervisor have negotiated and finalized the expectations for the practicum, the supervisor develops the TOR. It must be written on the host organization's letterhead and include the following information (see Appendix A).
  o An offer to place the student with a full-time practicum (35-40 hours per week) for at least six (or three) consecutive months. The start and end dates of the practicum must be included in the TOR.
  o Indication that the practicum will be based at the host organization (i.e., not remote) and the student will be given office space and access to a computer and internet (if relevant to the position)
  o Description of the student’s anticipated duties and responsibilities
  o Description of any support that will be provided (e.g., mentorship, financial or in-kind compensation)
  o The language in which the student will be expected to conduct their duties.
  o Any vacations or anticipated breaks in the assignment.
  o The supervisor’s name, title, and contact information (email address and phone number).
  o Supervisor’s signature (or the signature of a person of authority from the host organization)
• Students must submit a signed and witnessed Practicum Release and Waiver form to the practicum coordinator (see Appendix B; the form can also be found on LATTE).
• Students must maintain full-time status by paying a continuation fee during the term(s) that they are completing their practicum.
• Students must maintain their Brandeis or other health insurance policy or other health insurance coverage that meets the standards set forth by the university, regardless of their practicum location. Information related to the Brandeis insurance plan can be found at: http://www.brandeis.edu/health/insurance.

International students undertaking a US practicum must complete a CPT application. CPT requirements can be reviewed here. Please note that international students cannot begin their practicum until their CPT has been approved. If students have questions about CPT or any other ISSO requirements, they should reach out directly to ISSO (Bonnie Ryle: bryle@brandeis.edu or Ruth Brigham: rbrigham@brandeis.edu).
3. Searching for a Practicum

The practicum is a learning experience -- an opportunity to explore different professional positions, learn about a new field, and develop skills. It’s also an opportunity for students to learn what type of environment they like to work in. As much as possible, students should keep an open mind as they approach the practicum search and remember that it’s a time of exploration! The practicum does not have to be perfect, but it should be a good fit.

Students may begin by identifying a particular sub-field of development and a problem or issue within it that interests them. They can begin reading about the problem and looking for organizations that work actively in this sub-field to solve this problem. The following steps may be helpful for students as they search for a practicum.

Step 1: Identify purpose and goals

Students may begin by asking the following questions:

- Where do they see themselves professionally in five or ten years from now?
- What kind of practicum can help to get them there?
- What development problems drive their professional interests and/or passions?
- Where do they want to work?
- What type of organization do they want to work for?

Students might start with different professional options to help them think through their interests, talents, and goals, such as:

- Environment / social / economic / policy / education
- Research / advocacy / communications
- Government / IGO / NGO / private sector
- Large / small / grassroots organization
- International / national / local level
- Headquarters / field office
- Development manager / field specialist

There may be skills that students would like to develop, such as:

- Monitoring, evaluation, and learning
- Data collection and analysis
- Proposal writing
- Fundraising
- Mediation

Their purpose is reflected in what students want to achieve within the field of development. It might refer to a particular social or environmental change, or to groups or issues that spark their interest. Their purpose will drive their development problem statement and help them to plan their practicum.

Step 2: Know the situation and institutional landscape within your sub-field of development

Students may want to explore the context and institutional landscape of development. They can look for organizations working on policies, issues, programs, and projects related to their development problem. They should identify organizations that align with their academic and professional interests and that might be a good fit for their practicum. Students may also want to familiarize themselves with the literature on relevant issues within their chosen field of development to build their knowledge about their topic and to inform their conversations with organizations.
Students can also identify organizations through the SID Organization Database, which lists a range of development organizations by topic area and location. If SID alumni or current practicum students are associated with any of the organizations, their contact information is also provided.

Disclaimer: SID does not endorse, promote, or approve any of the organizations listed in the SID Organization Database. The organizations are listed as a resource for students to understand the landscape of the development field. It’s one tool of many that students can use for their practicum search. If students are interested in seeking a practicum at one of the organizations listed in the SID Organization Database, they should thoroughly research and vet the organization to ensure that it meets standards of excellence (ethics, effectiveness, accountability) and aligns with their academic and professional interests.

Online searches for organizations

Students may also want to identify organizations working in a particular sector or region through online searches and by searching websites that highlight NGOs. They can search the organization’s website to learn about its mission, programs, and services, as well as to identify the names and email addresses of individuals to contact. For examples of websites that provide lists of NGOs, INGOs, nonprofits, and other organizations working in the development field, please see Appendix C.

Step 3: Develop strategies for searching for and obtaining a practicum

1. Develop a strong resume

   Students may want to work with the Heller Career Development Center (HCDC) to ensure that their resume compellingly reflects their skills and expertise. Students can schedule an appointment to meet individually with one of the HCDC career specialists to review their resumes. For further information about HCDC, visit their website at http://heller.brandeis.edu/careers/

2. Network

   Networking allows students to make connections between people, build on relationships, and learn more about the field. It’s about gathering information about an organization or particular career path that will help them to make informed decisions about their professional goals and lead to future opportunities (see the HCDC networking guide located on Handshake).

   Informal Networking

   Networking can be informal—students can talk with friends and family members about their professional aspirations, seek advice on organizations that best align with their interests, and seek out introductions to individuals who can help to advance their goals.

   Formal Networking

   Networking can also be formal through career treks, attending conferences, alumni and association events, and job fairs.

   SID Community

   SID students can also reach out to current practicum students or alumni for advice, information about working in the field, and organization contacts. For a list of current and past SID practicum students, students can access the shared Google document: http://bit.ly/2zTDAr2. (A list of SID contacts can also be found in Appendix D.)
Students can also ask their professors and the practicum coordinator for advice on individuals or organizations to contact for their practicums.

LinkedIn

LinkedIn offers another platform for building professional connections. Students can work with HCDC to create a strong profile and to learn how to use LinkedIn effectively for networking. They can join the Heller School LinkedIn Group to identify alumni working in the development field. Other guidance can be found on The Student Job Hunting Handbook Series on the LinkedIn website located here: https://students.linkedin.com/.

Professional associations & forums

Professional associations and forums provide students with another opportunity for networking and learning more about their fields of interest. Here are just a few examples of professional associations that may help students with this process:

- Association for Conflict Resolution: https://www.acrnet.org/
- Association for Women’s Rights in Development: https://www.awid.org/
- International Development Evaluation Association: https://ideas-global.org/
- International Organization Development Association: https://iodanet.org/
- National Association of Environmental Professionals: http://www.naep.org/
- Peace and Justice Studies Association: https://www.peacejusticestudies.org/
- Society for International Development: https://sidw.org/
- South Sudan NGO Forum: http://southsudanngoforum.org/

3. Conduct informational interviews

According to the HCDC guide on networking, an informational interview is a conversation between you and someone whose job, work, or organization you admire, aspire to, or otherwise believe can be helpful to your professional development. It provides an opportunity to learn directly from an individual working in the field. Typically, the interviews are brief—only about 20–30 minutes long. For a review of best practices for conducting informational interviews, see the HCDC guide on networking.

4. Search employment websites

In addition to searching various job posting websites for practicums/internships, students can create email alerts and/or subscribe to the sites to receive current postings. Appendix E lists some websites for students to consider as they search for their practicum. They list job and internship opportunities in the development field. Depending on the student’s interests, some websites may prove more useful than others.

Students can also access the SID employment/internship database that includes current employment, internship, and funding opportunities; SID contacts; list of upcoming conferences; and job/internship and organization search sites.

Step Four: Approach the organization

Students can apply for an open practicum position within an organization by submitting their application according to the posting’s guidelines.

If students would like to approach an organization about a potential practicum (i.e., not advertised), they can try to negotiate a role that contributes to the organization’s mission, solves a problem, or supports an existing program with their sustainable development expertise. They may offer to incorporate a new dimension into the organization’s work; for example, examining gender issues or human rights, improving project design, developing participatory methods, or integrating conservation with improved livelihoods.

Taking initiative, being innovative and prepared, taking risks, staying flexible, and being persistent helps!
Step Five: Negotiate Terms of Reference

Once a student finds their practicums, has been assigned a field supervisor, and has discussed the practicum opportunity with the MA/SID practicum coordinator, they will negotiate and work with the organization to define the Terms of Reference (TOR). The students’ purpose and learning goals, combined with the organization’s mission and activities, will drive their TORs.

Considerations for the TOR

During the TOR negotiation, students should clarify the expectations for their field supervisor and host organization. The student’s field supervisor should be based at the practicum location and oversee the student’s work according to the TOR. The field supervisor also needs to provide mid-term and final evaluations in November/December and February/March, respectively. The practicum coordinator will send the evaluation forms to the field supervisor.

Host organizations should be encouraged to support students in any way possible to ensure a successful practicum. For example, host organizations should provide students with the professional assistance necessary to implement the TOR, such as training, staff support, office space, introductions, and access to office and field equipment, as necessary. Although the organization is not responsible for providing a salary, students can negotiate wages, a stipend, travel expenses, housing, or any other support that the host organization may be willing to provide.

TOR Requirements

The TOR should be written on the host organization’s letterhead and include the information listed below (please see Appendix A for a TOR template).

- An offer to the place the student with a full-time practicum (35-40 hours per week) for at least six (or three) consecutive months. The start and end dates of the practicum must be included in the TOR.
- Indication that the practicum will be based at the host organization (i.e., not remote) and the student will be given office space and access to a computer and internet (if relevant to the position)
- A description of the student’s anticipated duties and responsibilities
- Description of any support that will be provided (e.g., mentorship, financial or in-kind compensation)
- The language in which the student will be expected to conduct her/his duties.
- Any vacations or anticipated breaks in the assignment.
- The supervisor’s name, title, and contact information (email address and phone number).
- Supervisor’s signature (or the signature of a person of authority from the host organization)

Students should submit their signed TORs to the practicum coordinator for final program approval. Upon program approval of the TOR, any changes made to the work plan, location, or field supervisor must be approved by both the host organization and the MA/SID Program. Questions related to drafting a TOR or any other aspects of the MA/SID practicum requirements should be addressed to SID practicum coordinator.

Release & Waiver Form

Students must also submit a signed and witnessed Practicum Release and Waiver form to the practicum coordinator (see Appendix B; the form can also be found on LATTE).
SECTION II. PREPARATION FOR THE PRACTICUM AND LIVING ABROAD

Students may want to invest time in the library and online before they depart for their practicums. They can refer to the Research Guides page of the Brandeis Library website for SID research resources. Reading as much background material as possible on their development problem will result in a better paper and make them a more valuable member of the team at their host organization.

Students may also want to research local customs, habits, and etiquette, and reach out to alumni and others who could provide helpful insight to living and working in their practicum location. Making the most of your practicum may require some preparatory work on your part. Here are some suggestions and resources to consider.

1. Research the practicum destination

Students may want to research the practicum destination to gain an understanding of local history, politics, culture, traditions, professional etiquette, climate, transportation options, and safety concerns. Here are some suggested resources:

General and local country resources

- Commiseco Global: Country Guides to Culture, Customs and Etiquette
- BBC country profiles
- InterNations Country & City Guides
- Peace Corps Countries webpage
- Local online newspapers and radio stations
- Local alumni (connect via LinkedIn)
- Expatriate community in practicum location
- Online travel guides (e.g., Moon Travel Guides, Rough Guides, Lonely Planet)

Transportation

- The World Health Organization provides information on road safety, including country profiles and statistics, reports, and standards.
- The Association for Safe International Road Travel (ASIRT) provides information on how to minimize road risks, including local transportation options, road conditions, and road travel tips.

Practical information

- Local emergency numbers (police, ambulance, and fire): 911 Abroad
- Time zones, holidays, and weather: The Time Now
- Currency converter: OANDA

Resources for LGBTQ practicum students

As students prepare for their practicum, they may want to research the culturally based ideas and definitions of gender and sexual identity in their practicum location and to become familiar with the laws that may affect them. Here are some resources that may be beneficial to their preparation.

- International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans, and Intersex Association
- LGBTI Travel Information, US Department of State—Bureau of Consular Affairs
- OutRight Action International

Diversity, ethnicity, and race

The Diversity, Ethnicity, and Race Abroad webpage of Brandeis’ Office of Study Abroad provides information and resources for students of color from historically under-represented ethnic or racial backgrounds who are traveling abroad. Some students may find being outside of the American context a welcome relief, while others may experience challenges from general perceptions of racial and cultural groups in the host community. It may be beneficial to learn about the environment you will be entering. Students may want to reference the resources offered on the Diversity, Ethnicity, and Race Abroad webpage.

Disability and accessibility

Students with disabilities may want to review the types of accommodations that are provided in the host community, as well as the way the community understands disabilities. The Students with Disabilities webpage of the Brandeis Office of Study Abroad provides information and resources that may help students with disabilities to prepare for their practicum.

Students may want to reference Mobility International USA, which provides a library of resources and information on inclusive practices and disability advocacy.

2. Be proactive about health and wellness

Maintain health insurance

Students are required to maintain their Brandeis health insurance policy or other health insurance coverage that meets the standards set forth by the university, regardless of their practicum location.

Identify quality health care options prior to departure

The quality and quality of medical care varies within the US and abroad. Students should consider how they would access health care should a medical problem or emergency arise while they are completing their practicum. They may want to research health clinics and hospitals in the area in which their practicum organization is located and determine which medical facilities would provide the best quality care. For a list of resources that will help identify health care providers and facilities around the world, please visit the Centers for Disease Control’s Obtaining Health Care Abroad webpage.

Medicines

If students plan to take prescription or over-the-counter medication with them, they should research whether it is legal to bring the medication into their practicum country, and, if the medication is legal, if there is a limit on the quantity of medication that can enter the country. Certain packaging restrictions may also apply. Students may refer to the websites of their home embassies for their practicum countries for information on permitted medications.

If traveling outbound from the US, students may want to review the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) rules for traveling with medications.

Additional guidance on this issue can be found in The New York Times article How to Make Sure You Travel with Medication Legally and TripSavvy’s Tips for Traveling with Prescription Drugs.

Vaccinations (if applicable for international practicums)

To determine if any vaccinations are recommended for travel to the locale of the host organization, students may want to consult the following websites: Massachusetts General Hospital: Heading Home Healthy or Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Pack a Health Kit

Students may want to consider packing a few items to help them manage ailments and illnesses. Please refer to the CDC’s Pack Smart webpage for suggestions on what may be useful to have during their practicum.
Health-Related Resources

The CDC’s webpage Your Survival Guide to Safe and Healthy Travel provides valuable information and resources to help students to be “proactive, prepared, and protected” during their travels.

World Health Organization directs and coordinates international health within the United Nations’ system. The WHO website includes country-specific information related to health and general information related to various health topics.

US Department of State—Country Information provides information about the availability and quality of medical care within specific countries.

3. Apply for visas and/or permits

Internships can be subject to specific visa requirements and it is important to understand the requirements at the start of your planning.

Students are responsible for obtaining required visas, permits, and other documentation, with guidance from the host organization. The host organization must provide any documentation needed to confirm their role. Some host organizations require students to provide proof of enrollment at Brandeis University. See the Office of the University Registrar page of the Brandeis website for instructions on how to obtain a proof of enrollment letter. Contact Janie Marsan (jmarsan@brandeis.edu) at Heller’s Office of Student Records and Enrollment with any questions.

Curriculum Practical Training for international students

International students on an F-1 visa who are doing practicums in the US or with a US organization cannot begin the practicum until they have met all International Student and Scholars Office (ISSO) requirements, including an approved CPT form. Students should review the visa guidelines on the Employment/Academic Internships page of the ISSO website and reference the CPT Application Check List. Contact Bonnie Ryle (bryle@brandeis.edu) with any questions related to F-1 visa requirements.

4. Prepare finances and travel documents

Students may want to contact their financial institutions to notify them of their travel plans. This will help to ensure that they have continued access to their accounts. If possible, they should have a back-up credit card and/or emergency cash in case they have any banking issues or lose their credit or debit card.

It’s also a good idea for students to prepare their PIN before traveling abroad. Many international ATMs only support four-digit PINs. Students should ensure that their PINs do not begin with a zero, and they should know their PIN by the numbers, as some foreign ATMs do not have letters on the keypads.

As a precaution, students should also make copies of their important documents, including two copies of their passport, credit cards, and other travel documents. It’s recommended that they leave one copy with a family member or trusted friend and bring the other copy with them.

5. Be prepared for the unexpected

Identify local emergency numbers

Students should identify the local emergency numbers (police, ambulance, and fire) for their practicum destination. Students may reference 911 Abroad to determine this information.

Contacting SID
The practicum coordinator will provide an emergency phone number to students prior to the start of their practicum. Students may reach out to the practicum student at any time. She can also be reached at mpoor@brandeis.edu.

Register with home embassy

Students may want to register with their home embassies upon arrival in their practicum countries to receive updates about local safety conditions. US students may want to sign up for the Smart Traveler Enrollment Program (STEP), a free service that provides US citizens and nationals traveling and living abroad with information about safety conditions in their destination country.

Enroll in the CHUBB Travel Assistance Portal

Students may want to sign up for CHUBB Travel Assistance Portal (this service is offered through the emergency medical and travel insurance policy) – see page 13 and Appendix G for further information.
Emergency medical and travel insurance

Brandeis University is contracted with CHUBB Travel Assistance Program and Europ Assistance to provide assistance to students doing international practicums or internships. In addition to the coverage provided by the student’s health insurance, CHUBB and Europ Assistance provide the following benefits (adapted from the Insurance and Travel Assistance Coverage webpage of the Brandeis Office of Study Abroad):

- Medical Assistance: referral to a doctor or medical specialist; medical monitoring while hospitalized; emergency medical evacuation to proper medical facilities (100% of covered expenses); and repatriation of remains (100% of covered expenses).
- Personal Assistance: pre-trip medical referral information; emergency medication; embassy and consular information; lost document assistance; emergency cash advances; emergency referrals to legal assistance.
- Travel Assistance: emergency travel arrangements
- Security Assistance: crisis hotline; on-the-ground security assistance; access to secure, web-based system for tracking global threats and health- or location-based risk intelligence; security evacuation due to political causes ($100,000 maximum); security evacuation due to natural disasters (services only – this service is billable).

The Brandeis policy and details for activating emergency services can be found by clicking here and in Appendix F.

Students should sign up to access CHUBB’s Travel Assistance Services Portal, which provides information and tools to support travelers before and during their international trips. The site contains real-time destination-based health, security, travel-related information including:

- Country and city risk ratings and profiles
- Health, medical, safety, and security reports per locale
- Mitigation tips and consulate contacts
- Information on business conduct, transportation, holidays, and currency exchange rates
- News and real-time security alerts
- General travel tips

To receive proof of coverage (card) of CHUBB emergency travel and medical insurance, students should send the following information to the practicum coordinator (mpoor@brandeis.edu):

- Name
- Birth date
- Practicum country
- Countries other than practicum destination that student will travel to
- Travel dates

Although CHUBB offers emergency travel, medical and security services, it is NOT health insurance. Brandeis requires all practicum students to maintain health insurance coverage that meets the standards set forth by the university

Students should contact the SID practicum coordinator (mpoor@brandeis.edu) with any questions or concerns, and include this benefit when composing the risk assessment and analysis section for their second-year proposal.
6. Enroll in the SID Field Practicum course (HS230a)

Students must register for the field practicum course (HS230a) as full-time students through the Heller School’s Office of Student Records and Enrollment. The practicum course counts for 12 credits each semester and is graded as credit (CR) or no credit (NC).

7. Ensure emergency phone numbers and contact information are provided

The practicum coordinator will provide her cell phone # (WhatsApp) prior to the student’s departure. Students should add this number to their cell phones.

Students should also provide the practicum coordinator with their cell phone #s (WhatsApp) and emergency contacts (name, relationship, phone #, email address) prior to their departure.

8. Schedule a pre-departure meeting the practicum coordinator

Students should schedule a 15–30 minute pre-departure meeting with the practicum coordinator to review preparations and expectations for the practicum. The meeting can be in person or remote (via Skype).

9. Submit second-year proposal to practicum coordinator

Students should submit their second-year proposal to the practicum coordinator prior to their departure. Typically, the second-year proposal is due by early August.
SECTION III. THE PRACTICUM EXPERIENCE

Students should begin their practicum during the first week of September 2018 (or mid-May to the beginning of June for MASID/MSGHPM practicums). Upon arrival at their practicum location, students may want to take time to learn about the language, culture, and workplace norms. It is always helpful if students can find mentors and peers to help them understand the local traditions and organizational culture. Students may also want to consider the following:

- Apply theories and principles learned in the classroom. Students should explore ways to use theories studied and skills developed through coursework.

- Review academic sources. Including available “gray literature” (e.g., in-house project reports and publications, documents/files) to better understand the institutional mandate, achievements, and constraints of the host organization.

- Establish rapport with colleagues. This helps to open doors for support and access to information. Experience of previous students shows that “interrogating” (extracting or pushing for information) does not work, while informal “interviewing” (engaging, dialoging, and exchanging information) is often highly successful.

- Volunteer to help colleagues. Besides being generally helpful, students will learn a lot and this may allow them to take on more responsibility.

- Adopt standards of professionalism. As in all work, professional behavior is foundational. Organizations are complex, with webs of relationships and unspoken alliances. Understand and respect internal hierarchies. In case of difficult issues related to institutional politics, students should avoid personalization; rather, they should focus on their work, avoiding gossip and personal confrontation. They should try to maintain neutrality, objectivity, and discretion and to keep cordial relationships with everyone. It’s important to be transparent, flexible, respectful, and a team player, eager to learn about institutional and local culture.

Students should also dress appropriately for the workplace, be punctual and dependable, and produce quality deliverables. They should never hesitate to ask questions. If they don’t know or are unsure of something, they should ask their supervisor. Students should remember that they not only are representing SID, the Heller School, and Brandeis University, but also the host organization when they are in the field. The quality of their work and, ultimately, of their master’s paper will demonstrate their capacity as a practitioner with a specialty in sustainable international development.

- Cultivate humility. Listening to what people have to say, and recognizing that there are many ways to operate in the world, can go a long way towards creating positive relationships across cultures and may make the practicum experience richer.

- Stay Connected to the SID Community. Students should contact their academic advisors monthly via email or Skype to provide them with updates on their practicum and to communicate expectations related to the development of the master’s paper.

Students should also communicate every five to six weeks with the practicum coordinator (via email, Skype, or WhatsApp), providing a brief update on their practicum experience including the following information:
- Describe current assignments and responsibilities
- Share experiences that were particularly rewarding
- Describe experiences that were disappointing or frustrating
- Highlight skills that were learned or applied
- Describe expectations for the following reporting period (i.e., the next four to six weeks)
- Share any professional or personal successes, concerns, and/or challenges

Practicum students may also reach out (via email, phone, Skype, or WhatsApp) to the practicum coordinator at any time and as needed. The practicum coordinator will also have designated office hours one evening per week (TBD).

Students may also want to initiate a Facebook group or other method to stay in touch with each other while working in the field. The program will also offer opportunities over the course of the practicum period for students to engage in online small group discussions.

SID will hold webinars during the 2018-2019 academic year (dates/times TBD) on topics that may include:

- Research, Resources, and Citations
- Master's Paper Tutorial
- Q&A on the Master's Paper

- Reflect on the practicum experience. Students may want to keep a journal during their practicum as a way to think about the skills they are developing, the content they are learning, and the feedback they are receiving from their colleagues. Reflecting on the practicum experience also allows students to explore more deeply their connections to the community in which they are living, as well as to understand their own personal and professional growth.
Plan for the Master’s Paper. Students are expected to contact their academic advisors monthly via email or Skype to provide them with updates on their practicum and to communicate expectations related to the development of the master’s paper. It’s important to establish a timeline for the development of their paper early in the academic year.

At their host organization, students will professionally fulfill a TOR under the direction of a field supervisor. The focus of their master’s paper will be related to this work but will be directed by their SID academic advisor. Although their paper is expected to be of use to their organization, the paper is solely the students’ responsibility, is produced on their own time, and should not burden or rely on the support of anyone at the host organization. (The student’s field supervisor and others are welcome to help, if they wish, but their support is voluntary.) The practicum student-field supervisor relationship is a professional employee-employer relationship that includes a mentorship component. This means that, with the exception of the master’s paper, all work described in the TOR is under the guidance of the student’s field supervisor or their designee.

During the practicum, many students find that they want to adapt their plan or modify the focus of their paper. Students should communicate any proposed changes with their academic advisor. Any unauthorized changes in terms of practicum location, duration, or topical focus may invalidate approval of the student’s practicum.

Wrap Up—Evaluations. The practicum coordinator will send midterm and final online evaluation forms directly to the students’ supervisors for their feedback on the students’ job performance and professional growth. Students will also be asked to complete a brief online assessment of their practicum experience at the end of their practicum.
Other considerations for the practicum experience include the following:

1. Emergencies

   In the case of an emergency or other event that needs immediate attention, students should contact the SID practicum coordinator (mpoor@brandeis.edu). An emergency phone number will be provided to students prior to the start of their practicum.

   If there is no time to contact the practicum coordinator due to the nature of the emergency, students should contact the CHUBB Travel Assistance Program/Europe Assistance in one of the following ways:

   - Toll-free in the US or Canada at 1.800.243.6124
   - Collect outside the US at 1.202.659.7803
   - Email via OPS@europassistance-usa-com

   The Brandeis policy and details for activating emergency services can be found by clicking here and in Appendix F.

2. Staying healthy

   Changes in environment, climate, food, and water, as well as increased stress, can have an impact on students’ health. Whenever possible, students may want to give themselves time to acclimate to their new environment, get plenty of sleep, exercise regularly, stay hydrated, and maintain a healthy diet. Students can reference the CDC's Traveler’s Health webpage for information about food and water safety and other health considerations.

   For a list of resources that will help identify health care providers and facilities around the world, please visit the Centers for Disease Control’s Obtaining Health Care Abroad webpage.

   Working in the field – whether in the US or internationally – is an exciting opportunity to learn new skills, develop expertise, and discover a new community. However, the same qualities that make a practicum an exciting opportunity can also make the student feel stressed at times, especially at the beginning of the practicum when everything is so new. Sometimes students may become lonely or feel depressed or anxious.

   Students can access behavioral health support services while they are in the field. Here are some options:

   - Contact Sucheta Thekkedam, Licensed Clinical Psychologist and Staff Psychologist at Brandeis Counseling Center (with office hours at Heller): suthekked@brandeis.edu
   - Brandeis Counseling Center (BCC) provides — please see website for details: https://www.brandeis.edu/counseling/ Students may also want to refer to BCC’s Mental Health Care While Abroad: http://www.brandeis.edu/counseling/studyabroadtips.html
   - In the US, the Department of Behavioral Health’s 24-hour Access HelpLine (1-888-793-4357) is staffed by behavioral health professionals who can refer a caller to immediate help or ongoing care.
   - For students covered by Brandeis health insurance (both US based and international practicums), iHope provides video therapy sessions (please see Appendix G for details).
   - CHUBB Travel Assistance can provide local medical referrals.
   - ULifeline is an anonymous, confidential, online resource center for students to search for information they need regarding emotional health. Immediate confidential assistance is also provided via text or phone.
3. Maintaining personal safety

Students should prioritize their health and safety during their practicum partly by making responsible decisions that will mitigate potential risks and help to create a positive practicum experience. Some suggestions include:

- Learning the local language
- Knowing what activities and behavior are culturally and legally appropriate
- Keeping a list of emergency numbers
- Avoiding driving an automobile and/or operating a motorcycle
- Trusting their instincts
- Remaining alert to surroundings and staying informed of local conditions
- Avoiding high crime areas, demonstrations, and areas with political and/or social unrest

If students need emergency medical care, they should contact CHUBB/Europ Assistance (24-hour access). From outside the US, students can call collect: 1-202-659-7803. Please also contact the practicum coordinator via phone or mpoor@brandeis.edu.

If students have been victims of crime, they can reach out to their local embassy or consulate in country.

For US citizens, the US Department of State’s Help for US Citizen Victims of Crime webpage provides information and resources to assist individuals who have become victims of crime while abroad. US citizens traveling abroad can also call the US State Department’s emergency number: 1-202-501-4444.

Students may also want to reach out to their supervisors for guidance. Please also contact the practicum coordinator via phone or mpoor@brandeis.edu.

4. Maintaining Do No Harm within the organization and community

Students should also be mindful of the organization and community in which they are working and how their behavior, attitude, and actions may impact the organization’s culture, as well as the organization’s perception within the community, and the trust created between the community and the organization. Cross-cultural sensitivity and competency, open-mindedness and flexibility, and, above all, humility will go a long way toward creating a positive practicum experience. Students may want to reference UNESCO’s Intercultural Competences: Conceptual and Operational Framework.
