

FELDMAN FOUNDATION ENDOWED FELLOWSHIP

The Feldman Foundation Endowed Fellowship was established in 1998 by Moses Feldman '62. He met with Dean Jack Shonkoff and Irv Epstein at Brandeis House in New York City to discuss giving opportunities at the Heller School, which included international initiatives. Though his involvement with Heller and the Sustainable International Development program long predates this fellowship, he was inspired to create it after the Dalai Lama visited Brandeis and because of the program's international character.

Its purpose is to support deserving students enrolled in the Master's in Sustainable International Development program at the Heller School. Preference is given to students from developing countries who seek to address world development issues relating to rain forest conservation, population control, natural resource management, land preservation or other areas of study that focus on improving the quality of life and on preserving the environment in developing countries.

Moses is the founder and retired CEO of AeroMed Inc., a privately held manufacturer of medical devices. He once served as a member of the Heller School Board of Advisors. He is a Brandeis Fellow and received the Brandeis Pride Award from the Student Alumni Association in 1997. He resides in Pennsylvania and remains interested in learning about and hearing from the Feldman Foundation Endowed Fellows.
