

SOCIAL JUSTICE & PHILANTHROPY

Effective Grantmaking Tools and Strategies

HS 321F

REGISTER NOW

What: This course, taught through The Sillerman Center, focuses on social justice philanthropy, which directs dollars in order to make society and its social institutions more inclusive and equitable.

When: M/W at 4:05pm to 5:25pm

First Class on October 29, 2025

Who: Open to graduate students and upper level undergraduate students.

- Undergrad students must fill out the Add/Drop form and send to registrar@brandeis.edu

Instructor: Sheryl Seller

This course provides students a strong grounding in the history, evolution, roles, contributions, and complexities associated with philanthropy in the United States, while asking questions related to philanthropy's appropriate role, its inherent power and that critique its effectiveness in alleviating social problems and advancing social justice.

For more information, please contact Sheryl Seller at sheryl 89@brandeis.edu